Paul Southworth

Gary is a cranky mutant fish man who lives in a radioactive lake. He just wants to be left alone, but lately Gary's quiet life has been invaded by mad scientists, robots from the future, ancient water deities, refugee ghosts, marketing aliens, mutant plants, and extradimensional albino horror-squids . . . and that was just before lunchtime! Will Gary ever regain his life of solitude? He'll have to get through this noisy aquatic adventure first!

Collecting the wildly unpredictable comic strip, LAKE GARY VOL. 1: TOXIC JERK ENVIRONMENT takes a pointed look at our washed-up society through a much-too-accurate fisheye lens!
