FANTASY PANEL

Once upon a time...there was a fantasy panel! Come hear four New England fantasy authors answer questions and discuss topics like how to build fantasy worlds, how the genre has evolved, the real-world history that can be used as story inspiration, and more!

Rich Feitelberg

Rich Feitelberg is a fantasy author and poet. Author of the Gambit Trilogy, he has written both fiction and non-fiction for many years. As a boy, he grew up reading comic books, science fiction, and fairy tales and began weaving his own stories in elementary school.

Chris Philbrook

Chris Philbrook read so much fantasy growing up that he decided to start writing his own. After his friends read that, he decided a career making up stories might be pretty fun, and here we are, 25 novels later. He continues to write epic and dark fantasy, alongside his post-apocalyptic and horror novels, and sees no reason to stop anytime soon.

Marta Moran Bishop

Marta Moran Bishop is an award-winning and prolific writer with over 45 books in print. She began writing in 2009, and writes in multiple genres, as she continues to stretch herself and her craft. She is partial to writing fantasy and paranormal books and stories.

R. K. Bentley

R. K. Bentley was raised in New England on a steady diet of 80's Cartoons, Tom Baker Doctor Who, Babylon 5, Star Trek, Star Wars, comic books & movies. He's the co-creator, co-writer and letterer for the self-published indie comic, Totems. He is a member and social media director for the Association of Rhode Island Authors (ARIA). Where Weavers Daire is his first sci-fi novel in an ongoing series.
