Go on a trip most people only dream about. 4 Strokes West: An Amazing American Adventure is the real-life story of Mark DerMugrditchian and his two friends roaming throughout America from 1976-1977, living and experiencing life along the way.

An idea became a dream. The dream became a fixation, which became a reality, and the reality would swell to include Muhammad Ali, national television, Mexican bandits, a gorilla in a tree in Louisiana, an ill-tempered Hell's angel, a narcotics drop, a canine conspiracy involving a backpack of Mark's, an (allegedly) stolen diamond ring, celebrating Thanksgiving with a Mexican American family in Texas, and a puppy who became, as they say "Man's best friend." Their 1975 Honda CB 360 T motorcycles, which had a two cylinder 356cc four stroke engine, were their only means of transportation during this adventure of a lifetime throughout this great country.
