Loretta Rossetti

Sunday,
December 1st
10am-12pm

When Loretta was nineteen, she thought of an idea for a short children's story. All she knew was that the main character would be a small piece of dust. Throughout the years she thought about that little piece of dust, and after almost sixty years, she wrote the story, A Friendship by the Window.

The heart of the story centers around a small piece of dust, alone and frightened in the world, who hears a tapping on the window that leads to a friendship with a sweet maple tree. A bond and trust blossoms, and the small piece of dust slowly lets go of fear and begins to see the world as a place of love and beauty. This is her first book.

Loretta was a teacher in the U.S.A and around the world. She lives in Hudson with her cat, Annie Oakley, who enjoys hiding under the bed with a few dust puffs of her own.
